Excerpt: ... few faint reddish spots and a black dot here and there, very sparingly sprinkled over the surface, length (1) 0.82 x 0.6 in.; (2) 0.82 x 0.62 in.--(From Mr. K. H. Bennett's Coll.) (To be continued.) Descriptions Of Australian Micro-lepidoptera. By E. Meyrics, B.A. VIII. OECOPHORID.E. The Oecophoridae are the most extensive family of Lepidoptera in Australia, I have at present about 450 species from this region, but the number increases daily, and the total of those inhabiting Australia alone cannot be less than 2,000. A first instalment of these is here given, and the rest will follow in due order. In a paper recently communicated to the Entomological Society of London I have explained fully the views which I hold as to the limits and relative classification of this and the allied families, formerly included under the head of the Gelechiidae, into which I need therefore not enter here. The internal classification of the family was a task of considerable difficulty, but I believe the results arrived at, though doubtless susceptible of modification in details, will be found in the main satisfactory. From the rest of the world only 13 genera, containing about 120 species, have been described, and only two of these (Pleurota and Oecophora) have been found to occur here, the great mass of the species belonging to entirely new genera, of which I have been obliged to form 67. These undoubtedly form a closely united group, of which the various members are arranged in numerous divaricating branches on a short stem. From this close interconnection, as well as the great abundance of the group, I infer with confidence that Australia has been their centre of development, and that those genera which are found elsewhere, if not stragglers from this centre, may be regarded...
